1, Some people believe that businesses should be required to spend a certain amount of their profits on social programs that benefit the public and the communities where they operate. Others believe that businesses should be able to decide for themselves how to spend their profits. Which point of view do you agree with?

Personally, I believe that businesses should be required to spend a certain amount of their profits on social programs. Firstly, in today's society, there are various pressing issues, such as pollution, that require immediate attention. By investing in initiatives to improve air quality and promote recycling, businesses can contribute to solving these environmental problems. Additionally, supporting endangered animal conservation efforts can help preserve biodiversity. Secondly, businesses can benefit from such investments by building a positive reputation as socially responsible entities. This can enhance their brand image and attract more customers. Therefore, I support the idea of mandatory spending on social programs as it not only benefits the public and communities but also brings advantages to the businesses themselves.

2, Your city is considering a proposal to require car owners to pay an additional fee if they drive cars that do not meet environmental standards set by the city for air pollution. Do you think this is a good idea? Explain why or why not. Support your opinion with specific details and examples.

I believe that requiring car owners to pay an additional fee if their cars do not meet environmental standards is a good idea. Firstly, it is an effective way to protect the environment. By charging an additional fee, car owners who do not meet the standards may choose to use public transportation instead, which can greatly reduce air pollution in the city center. Secondly, the government can utilize the money collected from the fees for more meaningful purposes. For instance, they can invest in scientific research to improve air quality and explore other methods of environmental protection. This policy not only encourages eco-friendly behavior but also provides financial resources for important initiatives.

3, Do you agree or disagree with the following statement? To become successful at the sport, a person's talent is more important than his or her hard work.

I disagree with the statement that a person's talent is more important than his or her hard work to become successful at a sport. While talent can give someone an initial advantage, it is hard work that ultimately leads to success. Take the example of Lionel Messi, a renowned football player. Despite facing challenges in his early years due to a disease, Messi's dedication and relentless hard work helped him achieve his goals and win numerous competitions. Hard work allows individuals to improve their skills, overcome obstacles, and reach their full potential in sports. Therefore, I believe that hard work is crucial for success in sports, even more so than natural talent.

4, Some people prefer to live in places that have the same weather or climate all year round. Others like to live in areas where the weather changes several times a year. Which do you prefer? Use specific reasons and examples to support your choice.

I prefer to live in places that have the same weather all year round. The main reason for this is that I enjoy the consistency and comfort of a warm climate. For instance, when the weather is always like summer, I can wear light clothing and engage in outdoor activities without any restrictions. This allows me to fully enjoy my surroundings and make the most of my time outdoors. Additionally, living in a warm climate enables me to pursue activities like surfing throughout the year. Unlike in colder regions where the ocean is freezing cold in winter, I can indulge in my passion for surfing whenever I want. Overall, the stability and opportunities provided by a consistent weather pattern make me prefer living in places with the same climate.

5, Some professors at your university do not allow students to record class lectures. Do you agree with this policy? Explain why. Use details and examples to support your opinion.

I agree that students should be allowed to record their class lectures. Firstly, recording lectures can greatly enhance learning efficiency. For instance, in a biology class, the professor may explain complex and abstract terms that students may not fully understand in the moment. By recording the lecture, students can review the video afterwards, which can help them grasp the concepts more effectively. Secondly, allowing students to record lectures does not mean they will skip class or not pay attention. University students are expected to have self-discipline and attend classes. Allowing recording can provide an additional resource for students to review and reinforce their understanding of the material.

6, Your professor has offered you the opportunity to help him with some important research this weekend. However, you have made plans to travel to your hometown this weekend to attend your sister’s birthday party. What will you do? Explain the reasons for your choice.

I would choose to do the important research with my professor. Firstly, participating in such research offers valuable learning opportunities. Through previous experiences, I have gained knowledge and skills that are not taught in regular classes. For instance, I once conducted research on genome editing, which allowed me to attend academic conferences and learn from experts in the field. Secondly, I can make up for missing my sister's birthday party by sending her a thoughtful gift and arranging another time to celebrate together. It is important to prioritize academic and career development, especially when such opportunities arise.

7, I would choose to attend my sister's birthday party in my hometown. Firstly, I have already made a promise to be there, and I believe it is important to honor commitments. Secondly, with the advancements in technology, a lot of research work can be done online. If the professor needs assistance, I can offer help in alternative ways, such as collecting data or finding references. It is crucial to maintain personal relationships and fulfill obligations, while also finding creative solutions to support the professor's research.

Personally, I believe it is better not to think about work at all during vacation. Vacations are meant to be a time for relaxation and rejuvenation. Thinking about work can be so stressful and prevent us from fully recharging. Additionally, in today's fast-paced world, our workloads are already heavy enough. Taking a break from work allows us to recharge and come back with renewed energy and creativity. For example, many studies show that employees who completely disconnect from work during their vacations reported higher levels of job satisfaction and productivity when they return.

8, A big corporation is planning to invest in a factory in your hometown. This factory will create many job opportunities for people but also bring a lot of pollution at the same time. Do you agree or disagree?

I disagree with the idea of a big corporation investing in a factory in my hometown. While job creation is important, we should prioritise environmental protection. It is crucial for us to consider the long-term consequences of pollution. Sacrificing our environment for economic development is not a sustainable solution. We only have one Earth, and we need to think about the well-being of future generations. Instead, we can invest in the renewable energy industry and implement stricter pollution control measures. This way, we can create jobs without compromising the environment.

9, Do you think the government should spend money saving endangered animals or does the money have to come from private sources?

I believe that the government should allocate funds to save endangered animals. The loss of biodiversity is mainly caused by human activities, so it is the government's responsibility to address this issue. This is because the government has abundant resources and a strong commitment to protecting the environment, making it the most suitable entity to take the lead. By investing in the conservation of ecosystems, habitat restoration, and public awareness campaigns, the government can help maintain a balanced environment.

10, Do you agree or disagree with the following statement? All animals have the right to be treated and respected as humans.

I agree with the statement that all animals have the right to be respected. Animals, such as dogs, are often considered our best friends because they show us unconditional love and loyalty. Therefore, it is only fair that we reciprocate by treating them with kindness and respect. This can be achieved through various measures, such as promoting animal welfare, educating the public about responsible pet ownership, and supporting organizations that work towards the conservation of wildlife. By protecting their rights and ensuring their well-being, we can create a harmonious coexistence between humans and animals.

11, Some people prefer to live in places that have the same weather or climate all year round. Others like to live in areas where the weather changes several times a year. Which do you prefer? Use specific reasons and examples to support your choice.

I prefer to live in areas where the weather changes several times a year. One reason is that it allows me to experience different seasons and climates. For example, in my hometown, I can enjoy the beauty of snow in winter and the warmth of summer in the summertime. This variety of weather brings different outdoor activities and scenery throughout the year. Moreover, the changing weather can also bring a refreshing feeling and prevent monotony in daily life. Overall, living in this kind of area provides a diverse and dynamic environment to me.

12, Do you agree or disagree with the following statement?

Employees shouldn’t send personal texts or emails during work hours.

Explain why.

I disagree with the statement that employees shouldn't send personal texts or emails during work hours. Personal communication can have several benefits in the workplace. It allows employees to handle urgent personal matters efficiently, promoting work-life balance. Additionally, brief personal messages can serve as mental breaks, enhancing productivity and reducing stress. Moreover, personal communication fosters positive relationships among colleagues, promoting teamwork and collaboration. It also enables employees to stay connected with family and support networks, contributing to their overall well-being. Setting reasonable boundaries and guidelines can prevent excessive personal communication and ensure work responsibilities are met. In conclusion, allowing personal texts or emails during work hours can enhance employee satisfaction and productivity.

13, Do you agree or disagree with the following statement?

Good luck is as important as hard work for a person’s success.

I agree with the statement that good luck is as important as hard work for a person's success. While hard work and determination are crucial factors in achieving success, luck also plays a significant role. Opportunities and favorable circumstances often arise unexpectedly, and luck can open doors that hard work alone may not. Luck can bring serendipitous encounters, connections, or timing that propel individuals towards success. However, it's important to note that hard work maximizes the chances of success when combined with good luck. Hard work creates a strong foundation, increases skills, and prepares individuals to seize opportunities when they arise. Ultimately, the combination of hard work and good luck increases the likelihood of achieving success in various endeavors.

14, When watching a sporting event or other types of athletic competition, many people prefer to be in the audience where the event takes place such as a stadium or playing field. Other people prefer to view such events on a television or computer screen. Which do you prefer?

Personally, I prefer to be in the audience where the event takes place, such as a stadium or playing field. Being physically present allows me to experience the atmosphere, energy, and excitement firsthand. I enjoy the sense of community and camaraderie among fellow spectators and the opportunity to cheer for my favorite teams or athletes. Additionally, being present at the venue provides a more immersive experience, allowing me to witness the action from different angles and perspectives. While watching on a television or computer screen offers convenience and various camera angles, it cannot replicate the electrifying atmosphere and the shared experience of being among the crowd.

15, Many schools require students to read a certain number of books over extended school breaks. Some schools provide students with a list of books to read while others allow children to choose their own books. Which do you think is better? Explain why.

In my opinion, allowing children to choose their own books is better than providing them with a list of books to read over extended school breaks. When students have the freedom to select books that interest them, they are more likely to be engaged and motivated to read. It promotes a sense of ownership and autonomy in their reading experience. By choosing books based on their personal preferences, students can explore various genres, topics, and authors that resonate with their individual interests and learning styles. This can enhance their reading comprehension, critical thinking skills, and overall enjoyment of reading. Additionally, self-selected reading promotes a lifelong love for reading and encourages independent learning.

16, Do you agree or disagree with the following statement?
It is generally beneficial for boys and girls to attend separate schools.

I disagree with the statement that it is generally beneficial for boys and girls to attend separate schools. Co-educational schools offer numerous advantages. Firstly, they promote gender equality and provide opportunities for both genders to interact and learn from each other. This fosters mutual understanding, respect, and prepares students for real-world coexistence. Co-ed schools also reflect the diverse nature of society, allowing boys and girls to develop social skills that are essential for their future personal and professional lives. Moreover, co-education encourages healthy competition, collaboration, and the sharing of different perspectives. It creates a balanced learning environment that prepares students for a diverse and inclusive society.

17, Some people think risk-taking activities such as rock climbing and skydiving require a lot of bravery, while others think it is not bravery but simply foolishness. Which view do you prefer?

Personally, I believe that risk-taking activities such as rock climbing and skydiving require bravery rather than foolishness. Engaging in these activities involves facing fear and pushing personal limits, which requires courage and a willingness to step outside of one's comfort zone. Bravery entails understanding and managing risks while taking calculated steps to ensure safety. These activities can provide opportunities for personal growth, self-confidence, and a sense of accomplishment. However, it is crucial to emphasize the importance of proper training, preparedness, and adhering to safety protocols to mitigate unnecessary risks. With the right mindset and precautions, these activities can be seen as thrilling and courageous pursuits rather than mere foolishness.

18, Do you agree or disagree with the following statement?
People perform better when they are under some stress or pressure.
The theory is that when people are under stress, they tend to have a clearer motivation for their goals.
Use details and examples to explain your answer.

I agree with the statement that people perform better when they are under some stress or pressure. Stress can provide individuals with clear motivation for their goals. For example, when students have a deadline for a project, they are more likely to work harder and stay focused. The pressure of the deadline pushes them to prioritize their tasks and manage their time effectively. In this way, stress can enhance their performance and help them achieve their goals. Additionally, stress can also improve concentration and stimulate creativity. Therefore, I believe that a certain level of stress can be beneficial for individuals to perform better.

19, Do you agree or disagree with the following statement? All children should be required to attend school until age 16.

I agree that all children should be required to attend school until age sixteen. Education plays a crucial role in a child's development. Not only do children learn from their parents, but they also need the socialization and friendships that school provides. Attending school helps children develop important social skills and prepares them for the future. For example, they learn how to work in teams, solve problems, and communicate effectively. Moreover, schools offer a wide range of subjects and extracurricular activities that can help children discover their interests and talents. Therefore, attending school until age sixteen is essential for a child's overall growth and success.

20, When taking notes during a lecture or meeting, some people prefer to write them by hand on paper. Other people prefer to take notes by typing them on laptops or other devices. Which do you prefer? Explain why, using details and examples.

I prefer taking notes on a laptop during a lecture. One reason is that it is more convenient. With a laptop, I can easily type and organize my notes, and I can access them anytime and anywhere. For example, if I have a class on music theory, I can simply listen to the professor's lecture and type my notes directly on my laptop. This allows me to focus on understanding the material rather than worrying about my handwriting. Additionally, having my notes stored digitally makes it easier for me to search and review them later. Overall, using a laptop for note-taking provides me with convenience and efficiency.
